The best time for Dinner.

In enterprising commercial communities, in London and Liverpool for example, it is a common practice to hasten away to the counting room immediately after early breakfast; to remain there in active employment from nine o'clock in the morning till six o'clock in the evening, by which time, the vital functions have become so far exhausted as to create a strong desire for something stimulating both in food and drink If this desire be gratified, immediate relief is obtained, and a temporary feeling of comfort pervades the frame; but nothing can be more erroneous than to regard this as a proof of the indulgence being beneficial. The organization soon gets accustomed to the stimulus; its susceptibility becomes impaired by the frequency by which the latter is administered; and, in a short time, indigestion is the inevitable consequence. The evils attendant on this course of life, are not unfrequently aggravated by the preposterous means resorted to for their prevention. Having some vague notion that exercise improves indigestion, and not being at all aware that there is an improper as well as a proper time for taking it, many persons, after being exhausted by seven or eight hours' confinement to the counting-house, proceed to take a walk of four or five miles, before going home to dinner, and thus utterly throw away the little strength that was left to them, and are filled with disappointment on finding their appetite and digestion worse than before.

Dr. Paris mentions the case of a clerk, in a public office, who brought upon himself all the horrors of dyspepsia by following this plan. He breakfasted at nine, went to his office at ten, continued there till five, walked till seven, and then dined. He was cured in six weeks by adopting a more rational regimen, and dining at 3 o'clock. Many females and delicate persons injure their powers of digestion by delaying their exercise till the system is too much exhausted to profit by it. In boarding schools the same error is often committed from a desire which is felt to have all the lessons over before allowed any play. As a general rule, then, not more than five hours ought to intervene between breakfast and dinner. If the mode of life be such as involves great activity in the open air, or the period of life be one of rapid growth or filling up, (as during youth or convalescence from sickness,) the interval may with propriety be shortened: whereas, if the mode of life be sedentary and unattended with much activity of nutrition, the interval may be considerably protracted without much inconvenience. Much, also, ought to depend upon the natural rapidity or slowness of digestion. In some constitutions civilization goes on so slowly that the individual can pass with ease eight or ten hours without food: whereas, in others, it is so rapid that a fresh supply becomes necessary in half the time. Spallanzani himself was an example of the former kind; or in him digestion went on so slowly that he was unable to study for five or six hours after even a very spare meal.

The proper rule in every case is, to take dinner at such an interval after breakfast as the return of healthy appetite indicates, whether that interval be longer or shorter than the average specified.—That, according to this rule, the general time for dinner ought to be somewhere about five hours after an ordinary breakfast is evident from the almost universal return of appetite at the end of such an interval; and from the fact that many, through sheer inability to resist longer the wholesome cravings of nature, are in the regular habit of eating dinner at that time, but, to save appearances, give it the name of luncheon, by which means they hold themselves entitled to the enjoyment of a second and more substantial dinner, later in the day. Invalids, dyspeptics, and all who, possessing vigorous digestion, wish to retain it, will do well to follow the intentions of nature, and observe the intervals which she has appointed. Those who disregard them, and still digest without difficulty have reason to be grateful to Providence; but they may rest satisfied that they will longer enjoy their privileges and better evince their gratitude by submitting their conduct to the ordinary laws of the animal economy than by presuming too much on their supposed exemption from the salutary restraints of reason and experience.—Dr. Combe's Physiology of Digestion.

Potatoes, Bread and Mutton.

The art for preparing potatoes for human use is utterly unknown except in certain provinces of our empire, and amongst certain sections of the laboring class. In our cities, (London, Edinburgh &c.,) the sort of things which you see offered at the table under the name and reputation of potatoes are such, that, if you could suppose the company to be composed of Centaurs, and Lapithæ or any other quarrelsome people, it would become necessary for others to interfere. The potatoes of cities is a very dangerous missile, and, if thrown with accuracy by an angry hand, will fracture any known skull. In volume and consistency it is very like a paving stone, only that I should say the paving stone had the advantage in point of tenderness. And upon this horrid basis, which youthful ostriches would repent of swallowing, the trembling palpitating invalid, fresh from the scourging of alcohol, is requested to build the superstructure of his dinner. The proverb, says, that, "three littings are as bad as fire," and on that model I conceive that potatoes as they are found at many British dinner tables, would be equal, in principle of ruin, to two glasses of vitriol. The same savage ignorance appears, and not only so often, in the bread of this island. Myriads of families eat it in that early stage of sponge which bread assumes during the process of baking; but less than sixty hours will not fit this dangerous article of human diet to be eaten. And those who are acquainted with the works of Parmentier, or other learned investigations of bread and the baker's art must be aware that this quality of sponginess, though quite equal to the ruin of the digestive organs, is but one in the legion of vices to which the article is liable.

A German of much research wrote a book on the conceivable faults of a pair of shoes, which he found to be about six hundred and sixty-six, many of them, as he observed, requiring a very delicate process of study to find out; whereas, the possible faults in bread, which are not less in number, require no study at all for detection; they publish themselves through all varieties of misery. But the perfection of barbarism, as regards our island cookery, is reserved for animal food: and the two poles of Oromasses and Abrimanes are no where so conspicuously exhibited. Our insular sheep, for instance, are so far superior to any which the continent produces, that the present Prussian minister at our court is in the habit of questioning a man's right to talk of mutton as anything beyond a great idea, unless he can prove a residence in Great Britain. One sole case he cites of a dinner in the Elbe, when a particular leg of mutton really struck him as rivalling any which he had known in England. The mystery seemed inexplicable; but upon inquiry it turned out to be an importation from Leith. Yet this incomparable article, to produce which the skill of the feeder must co-operate with the bounty of nature, calls forth the most dangerous refinements of barbarism in its cookery. A Frenchman requires, as the primary qualifications of flesh meat, that it should be tender. We English universally, but especially the Scots, treat quality with indifference, or with rare toleration. What we require is, that it should be fresh, that is, recently killed, in which state it is almost be digestible except by a crocodile; and we present it at table in a transition state of rather, demanding the teeth of a tiger to rend it in pieces, and the stomach of a tiger to digest it.—Blackwood's Magazine.

A Thanksgiving Tale.

In one of the small interior towns of New England, where the superstitions of our ancestors still possess strong hold on the minds of the people, the facts occurred a few days since on which the following tale is founded

An honest farmer and his family preparing to celebrate Thanksgiving at his wife's father's in an adjacent town, were hurried and confused extremely on the day proceeding that festival, by the multiplicty of things which must be done before they could leave home with perfect safety. The house was to be banked up, and the gleanings of the harvest, cabbages, turnips, &c., put into the cellar, that the external entrance thereto might be closed for the season. Having carried in the vegetables, the boys were despatched to the barn for straw to fill the passage-way, while the good man himself was busied on the opposite side of the house. An old ram, the horned patriarch of a large flock of sheep kept on the farm, having got a taste of some of the scattered leaves of the cabbage, unobserved, entered the cellar and silently continued his feast. The avenue through which he entered was immediately closed-up, and all the necessary work and arrangements being completed, the larger boys and girls set off on foot in high glee, the dog running and barking before them, apparently as wel pleased with going to Grand papa's as any of the dappy group,

Soon after, the parent pair and their little ones, having put out the fire and fastened the doors and windows, by means of many curious contrivances to keep out thieves, started on the same destination.

On the afternoon of the day following the festival, which had been kept under the paternal roof with many devout and jovial exercises, the family returned home accompanied by some of their young cousins, Some of their youthful neighbors of both sexes were invited in, and a merry thanksgiving carousal was in the full tide of successful operation, when one of the boys, who had been sent into the cellar, with a little tow wicked candle, which gave just light enough to make darkness visible, to draw cider, ran back into the room with eyes glaring wildly, uttering a half suffocated exclamation—"the devil is in the cellar!"—"Poh!" said the father, "you have only been frightened by your own shadow—give me the light." On which he seized the candle, leaving the pewter candle stick clenched fast in the shaking hand of the boy, and boldly rushed to the cellar stairs, but ere he had descended half the steps, the large saucer eyes and enormous horns of the beast caused him to retreat as much terrified as his son—"Sure enough the devil is in the cellar!" The utmost confusion and uproar now prevailed in the house. The good man seized the great Bible and attempted to read, but the candle sputtered, burnt blue, and threw so feeble a light on the sacred page; and the book trembled so much in the hand of the reader, that he could not distinguish one word from another. The little children cried and clung to their mother—the lasses nestled close to their favorite swains—and the whole house shook with the agitation of its half demented inhabitants—One bright thought, however, occurred—a messenger was despatched to the minister, "to lay the devil."

The parson, a man more celebrated for good nature, piety, and credulity, than for talents or heroism, slipped the small Bible into his pocket, put on his band and surplice, that he might appear as formidable to his great adversary as possible, and hastened to the relief of his distressed parishioners.

On coming to the house, the reverend man was hailed as a deliverer, and implored by at least a dozen voices at once, "to drive the devil away." But few moments were lost in asking questions, which no one could answer, before the parson was pushed forward as a leader, lighted by the same penurious candle into the cellar, the most courageous of the company keeping close behind him.—When he reached the foot of the stairs the eyes of fire and the shadowy outline of enormous horns, magnified ten-fold at least, by the terrors of those that beheld them, removed all doubt, if any had previously existed in his mind, as to the infernal nature of the being with whom he had to contend. The divine instantly fell on his knees, and with uplifted hands began to pray in his most fervent manner. The ram not understanding the good man's motives, but supposing, by the motion of his hands, that he was daring him to a butting contest, made a pass with all his might at his supposed adversary, but, deceived by the swelling dimensions of his drapery, missed the slender body of the priest, and drawing hastily back to renew the assault, hooked one of his horns into the belt of his surplice, and pulled the parson with him into the cellar. While thus in the power of his victorious foe, lost to hope as it regarded himself, the natural benevolence of his disposition burst forth in the exclamation, 'Brethren, take care of yourselves, the devil has got me.' This exhortation was better obeyed than any that he had delivered from the pulpit; his friends all fled and left him to his fate.

Among the company was a shrewd young farmer, who had from the first supposed the fiend to be nothing more than some domestic animal, but being a lover of fun and willing to see a comedy, he kept his thoughts to himself and pretended to sympathise with others in their fears. He now thought it time to interfere, and snatching a pitch pine knot blazing from the fire, expressed his determination to rescue the priest or perish in the attempt. A lovely young damsel laid hold of the skirts of his coat—and the cry of don't, don't, proceeded from every part of the room Unheeding this kind concern for his safety, he rushed into the cellar, seized the ram by one of his horns and dragged the struggling animal up stairs, calling to the astonished parson, "follow me," the horned devil was led in triumph, followed by the vanquished Ecclesiastic, in the midst of the company. A momentary silence ar.i ensuing down of heads ensued. The past scene, however, was too ludicrous to admit of sober reflection, and loud peals of laughter burst forth from every side, during which the ram was turned out at the door, the parson absented himself without ceremony, and the sports of the evening were resumed with better spirits than Before.

Lusus Naturæ.

The Detroit Advertiser has a letter from Brownstown, that gives the following curious facts: "A Mrs. Cotter has just been delivered of a female child, whose body is perfect; but is entirely and completely without arms—not having the appearance of any; it has shoulder blades, and at the place where the shoulder point should be, there is a small cicatrix or scar, about the bigness of a small pea.

On the right side, it has but half a leg: the foot is where the knee should be. It has complete control of the foot and ancle joint, and moves its thigh and leg with ease in any direction. It has but four toes on the feet.

Its left leg is perfect; but it has a club foot, with this difference from the ordinary club foot—the foot turns outward and upwards, so that the toes point upwards to the child's face; and it also has but four toes on this foot.

Vaccination.

Dr. Fahnestock, of Bordentown, in an article on the Small-Pox and Vaccination, comes to the following positions as the result of his observation and experience:—

1. That vaccination is the best protection from small-pox. It modifies the disease and preserves life, although it does not in all cases exempt entirely from an attack of variolous disease.

2. That re-vaccination becomes necessary to test the protection of the system.

3. That after re-vaccination. an individual may have a reasonable certainty of exemption from an attack of variolod.

4. That re-vaccination should be resorted to by all persons upon whom it has not been repeated, whenever the small-pox assumes an epidemic form; as the changes constantly taking place in the human system, render an individual liable to infection at one period who may have been exempt at another; and particularly as that liability is greatly increased for the existence of the various constitution of the atmosphere, which fans otherwise sporadic cases into epidemic prevalence.

AN IMPROMPTU,

By a crabbed husband, on seeing a lady's bonnet carried off by the wind in Broadway.

"Look! see that lady's bonnet there;
Feathers and all are in the air!"
"Nay," very coolly said the other,
"Don't put yourself in such a pother
About this every day disaster;
When bonnets, feathers, highest fly;
Our money flies the faster!"

Who is Judge Story!

This distinguished jurist, whose recent death produces a great sensation throughout the country, was, as is generally known, a professor in Harvard University. It was his custom to amuse his class by retailing interesting anecdotes, in illustration of principles of law, and few men have ever been more skilful and adept in the management of this kind of instruction. A writer in the Mississippi Freetrader tells an anecdote of a lecture of his, he heard on a casnl visit to Cambridge, in which he stated that the Courts of England had awarded a hundred pound note to the person from whom it had been stolen, because the banker who purchased it from the thief ought to have known from his personal appearance that he would not be likely to own a note of such value. This rule, he thought, would not always operate justly in this country; and in illustration he stated, in his inimitable manner the following anecdote:

"When I came here to Cambridge," said he, "to occupy the station which I now hold, my friends thought proper to greet me with a public dinner, which was served up with a good deal of parade in a large room adjoining the post office; where there was, as is not uncommon on such occasions, a great deal of noise, and a good while continued. I supposed it probable that there was not a man, woman or child, in this small village, who did not know of this merry-making, and the occasion of it, particularly as I had occupied a seat upon the Bench in Boston for sixteen years previously, and passed sentences of death upon numerous convicts. The bustle and noise being over, and having pursued my avocation as a lecturer on law in this place for about two month's I had occasion one day to call at the post office and inquire for letters for Judge Story.

"Judge Story?" inquired the postmaster. "Judge Story, I replied with some emphasis. "Judge Story! Judge Story. I never heard of him before."

"Not long afterwards," he continued, "it happened that on my way to Boston one day on foot I had occasion to use the sum of fifty dollars at the intervening village of Cambridgeport, and, stepping in to the Bank there, I inquired of the Cashier if he would pay my check for that amount on a Bank in Boston. He looked somewhat surprised, hesitated, surveyed my person, and stretching himself over the counter, looked particularly sharp at my feet. Finding he did not know me, I gave my name, and after a few minutes conversation he agreed to pay me the money. After he had done so, I asked him why he hesitated, and particularly why he thought it necessary to take such a searching look at my feet. He said he did not know me, and his object was to satisfy himself from my personal appearance that I was good for fifty dollars; and he thought the best evidence would be afforded by the kind of boots I wore, which, unfortunately, on that occasion, were not such as to recommend me to his confidence."

The Name.

The United States, it is said, have no name to indicate them as a Country, except the phrase "The United States of North America." But properly speaking, this is the name of the confederation, and not of the country. We of this Union, in speaking of our country, call it America; yet as other American Nation shall advance in talent, genius and distinction, it is evident that the appellation cannot be claimed by ourselves as our peculiar Name.

This point, now, is beginning to excite much attention. The United States, it is thought, have reached an age to be christened,—to have a true and legitimate name as well as other Nations.—The Historical Society, several months since, had this subject before the members, and recommended a name. The New York Tribune approves the suggestion, and recommends that our Country should take the name "Columbia," in honor of Christopher Columbus, who was defrauded of his just due in the name of the Continent. But the Evening Gazette of New York, although it heartily unites in the propriety of finding a name for our Country, thinks that "Columbia" should still be fixed upon as the name of the Continent, and that the United States should be called "America." "This seems to us (says the Gazette) more just to Columbus, more suited to the feelings of our people, and to involve actually less change than the other proposition; beside we confess a great weakness in favor of the name American."

This we must admit, is a strange predicament for the United States to be placed in! A great country, having had her honored stand among the nations of the earth, for nearly three quarters of a century, and yet without a name! Seriously, this matter should be looked to. We must have a National christening, some how or other. But are not our statesmen already providing for this object? Texas, by annexation to the United States, has, at this time, also lost her title to a name as a Nation. Texas is the name of a State, belonging to the Union, just as Pennsylvania, New York, or Virginia. And when Congress shall have annexed to our confederation, all the British and Russian possessions, together with Mexico and her territories, then the United States will be co-extensive and synonymous with North America, a name, we believe, and a mode of obtaining it, more congenial to the feelings of our people, if we are to judge by recent events, than any other.

Late from South America.

By the barque Anahuac, papers to the 12th of November have been received. There is nothing important from Buenos Ayres. Some complaints are made of an act of violence, said to have been committed against the Brazilian ship- the Olinda, by the commanders of the blockading squadron.

By accounts from Buenos Ayres, it appears that President Rosas issued an order on the 16th of October, putting a stop to any further payments to be made of the interest of the public debt, due to the English creditors of the Argentine Republic. The order was unanimously confirmed by Chamber of Representatives to whom it had been submitted for their confirmation. Don Miguel Garcia, President of the Chamber, communicates the approbation of the House to this measure, in a letter, in which he inveighs strongly and energetically against the conduct of the English and French ministers, and enters into a justification of this official repudiation, or rather suspension, as it is called, inasmuch as it is ordered that the payment be suspended so long as the blockade is continued.

The amount of this payment is stated to have been $60,000, which, it appears, was paid monthly. This will be a serious inconvenience to the holders of Argentine scrip, and a just rebuke of foreign interference. The loan of which the interest is now stopped, is that which was made in London in 1824. The blockade is declared in this document to be a gross and shameful infraction of the rights of the people, and a breach of the usual forms of comity among civilized nations.

"General Oribe, it appears, in consequence of the violent conduct of the English and French ministers, had ordered all persons belonging to these nations residing in the country, to be conveyed as prisoners into the interior, and their goods to be confiscated, excepting such as were willing to sign a declaration of allegiance to the Argentine Government. This martial proceeding of Oribe occasioned the sending of several flags of truce from the fleets to the shore, and a frequent interchange of messengers, which gave rise to hopes among the populace of a peaceable adjustment of the war, until the cause was afterwards ascertained. President Rossa, on being appealed to, to rescind the orders of Oribe, refused to interfere, and they have been accordingly carried into execution.

Magnetic Telegraph.

The experiments on the Magnetic Telegraph were continued on Saturday between this city and Norristown. Up to a late hour on Saturday night there has nothing transpired in that town or vicinity worthy of special note. The line between this city and Harrisburgh is finished from the latter place to Lancaster, and is progressing rapidly towards completion. The Philadelphia train leaves Harrisburgh at one o'clock each day, and passes through Lancaster at four o'clock. Occurrences at Harrisburgh up to half past three o'clock, can therefore intercept the train at Lancaster by the Telegraph, and be conveyed by it through to Philadelphia along with the earlier news of the day.

Carrier Pigeons.

A work recently published in London, describing a system of expresses by carrier pigeons, says that the cost of keeping a pigeon express has been estimated at 600 or £700 a year. It is stated that the daily papers avail themselves of the news brought by these expresses; but, in consideration of all owing the speculators to read the dispatches first, the proprietors, it is understood, bear but a minimum proportion of the expense. The birds generally used are of the Antwerp breed, strong in the wing and fully feathered. The months in which they are chiefly worked are the latter end of May, June, July, August, and the beginning of September; and though the news may not always be of importance, a communication is generally kept up daily between London and Paris in this manner.

Wreck and Loss of Life.

The following is an extract of a letter received at Quebec, by Messrs. Tetu & Co., dated River Quelle, 23d Dec., 1845—

"A boat from Green Island, with 15 men on board, got fast in the ice, and every soul on board perished. It is also reported that sixteen seamen had been found frozen to death, on Red Island.

Five vessels are wrecked in the St. Lawrence, the Montreal, Sir Richard Jackson- Syrian, Wm. Byard, and a schooner. The crew of one was saved, but of another not one is left to tell the tale. Several of the bodies have been washed on shore; among them are a woman and child. The crew of the schooner could not be found, and one of the Wm. Byard's men was so badly frost-bitten that he was not expected to live. Many other vessels that sailed lately from Montreal and Quebec are supposed to be fast in the ice somewhere on the river.

☞ Mr. Lyman D. Scott, an intemperate man, burned his house and himself in it at Monkton, Vermont, on Saturday before last He was about 45 years old, and has left a wife and two children.

The Minority Report.

Mr. G. Davis, in behalf of the minority of the Committee of Foreign Affairs, presented a counter report, differing from the report presented by Mr. C. J. Ingersoll. The minority report states that to give the notice on the subject of Oregon, rests properly with the treaty making power.

"The maintenance of all our foreign intercourse pertains to the President. He negotiates treaties and submits them confidentially to the Senate, which approves or rejects them. Secret and confidential relations subsist between him and the Senate such as he does not, and cannot have with the House. A proper judgment upon the question of this notice might depend upon a knowledge, in all its minuteness, of the existing diplomatic correspondence, pending propositions, verbal or written, and all the relations between our government and that of England. All this information the President might communicate under the seal of confidence and secrecy to the Senate; the House would have no right to demand it of him, and it might be improper for him to impart it; if he did, the House would be possessed of it subject to no inviolability, and yet secrecy might be very necessary. Suppose, too, the House should decide against the propriety of giving this notice, its judgment against that of the President and the Senate would effect nothing practically. He and two-thirds of that body could give the notice in defiance of the House; and whatever way it might act upon the subject, they could constitutionally disregard and overrule. It is, then, deemed to be clearly established, that the House is not a necessary party to give this notice—that it might, in fact, be given without consulting it, and against its expressed judgment."

It concludes by saying, "if the house distrusted the President in this matter, it might pass a monitory resolution, operating morally, to quicken or restrain his action. But it is his business, not that of the House. In the present state of the question, without expressing an opinion, whether the notice ought or ought not, to be given, and as the solution of that question is constitutionally, for him, or for him acting with the Senate, the House ought to be content to leave him to his proper judgement, discretion and responsibility. Wherefore,

Resolved, That the question whether a notice to terminate the convention between the United States and Great Britain, of October, 1818, and continued in force by the convention of August, 1827, ought to be given, is not a matter for the decision of Congress, and upon it this House, at the present, refrains from the expression of any opinion.

Mexico.

The last intelligence from Mexico gave information of another revolution in progress in that country. The information indeed was not very definite nor do we know that its accuracy is to be relied on in full. The accounts stated that Paredes had pronounced against the government, that he was marching upon the city of Mexico to displace Herrera from the Presidency; and that the ground of the revolution was the act of the government in making pacific overtures to the United States.

If these statements be true, the next news from Mexico may produce an entire change in the aspect of our relations with that republic. Our Minister, who went with the olive branch in his hand at the instance of Mexico herself, may be compelled to return immediately with the symbol of peace rejected.

Of the power of Paredes to overthrow the government of Herrera, taking advantage of favorable circumstances, there seems to be no doubt. The former is considered the ablest general in the Mexican army. He affected the revolution which placed Santa Ana in power some years ago; he also led the movement which displaced that dictator. Having so often made others President the successful general may now feel disposed to become President himself. He is in command of the largest division of the army and the best disciplined.

If it should appear that Mexico has receded from her peaceful attitude by the triumph of Paredes and the war party, it is altogether probable that our Government will wait no longer to humour her varying whims, but will move at once and in a decisive manner bring the question of boundary and all other questions between the two countries to a speedy settlement.

Destructive Fire in Columbia, Tennessee.

We learn from the Nashville Orthopolitan that a fire broke out in the town of Columbia, Maury co., Tenn., on Monday night, which consumed near one-fourth of the town, being near the square—embracing the silversmith shops of Wm. R. and J. Hodge, Strickland's cabinet shop, Helm's shoe shop, Gamblin's grocery, Kelly's dry goods store, Estes' tiner shop, the Observer printing office, the large Eagle Hotel; Mrs. Alderson's house, and several brick and frame houses, kitchens, &c. It is not known how the fire originated.

Attempt at Suicide.

We copy the following from the Bowling Green, Ky. Argus of last Saturday:—"On last Friday, Mr. Clinton Covington, was found in his room at his father's residence, in the vicinity of this place, having been shot with a musket charged with shot. The entire load entered the abdominal region, and ranged in the direction of the shoulder, cutting his lungs, but miraculously avoiding the heart. The young man is in a very critical and perilous situation, but hopes are entertained of his recovery. All the circumstances favor the conclusion that the act was perpetrated by himself, yet, on the subject, he absolutely refuses to speak.

CAUTION.—A person calling himself Moorhead has been collecting funds in Allegheny city, possibly in this city also, alleging that they were to aid a poor family, then at Mr. Sweeney's Hotel to proceed to Hollidaysburg. The imposter stated that the head of the family had broken a leg,&c.,but on inquiring, it appears that no such family is at Mr. Sweeney's. This notice is to protect the benevolent from a swindler.

Temperance in Ohio.

A State Temperance Convention was lately held at Columbus, over which Gov. Bartley presided. S. F. Cary writes to the Boston Traveller as follows:

Forty-eight counties were represented by more than two hundred delegates. The lower branch of the Legislature adjourned for the purpose of attending the deliberations of the Convention. The senate refused to adjourn; yet the members were so anxious to be with us, that on one occasion the Sergeant-at-Arms was deputed to the Convention for some of the Senators, as there was not a quorum in their chamber.

The main subject of discussion which elicited great interest was the license question. Thousands and tens of thousands of the freemen of Ohio are sending up their petitions to the present Legislature to submit the question of license or no license to the voters of the townships. One petition from Dayton, ten feet long, was presented, and from this county there was some 6000 signatures to a like petition. The State Convention in a body sent their memorial to the same effect.—What will be the result we cannot say; but it is my conviction that we will have a law the present session, similar to the law of New York. For myself, I prefer that law to any other with which I am acquainted.

The Convention spent a portion of their time in receiving reports from the delegates in relation to the state of the cause in their respective counties. It would have done your heart good to have heard these reports. The cause is advancing gloriously in the Buckeye State. We are very little behind your own Commonwealth. We have many obstacles to surmount; many difficulties to overcome; but we have stout hearts and willing hands, and with the continued blessing of God, our land shall yet be free from the slavish chains of Intemperance.

THERE were three cases before his Honer this morning, all for drunkenness, they were all sent to the hill Col Trovillo having charge of them for the next twenty four hours one of the cases was a female, and a hard case she was and no mistake.

Twenty-ninth Congress.

FIRST SESSION.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6, 1846.

UNITED STATES SENATE.

Mr. Allen, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs reported a Resolution directing the Secretary of the Senate to cause to be prepared for the use of the Senato 10,000 copies of the map of Oregon, compiled by the officers of the Exploring Expedition, provided the cost of the same does not exceed $10. Laid over.

Mr. Cameron, from the Committee on Public Buildings, reported a joint resolution to authorize the Washington Monument Committee to erect a statue to Washington on any of the public grounds not otherwise occupied, that may be designated by the President of the United States. Laid over.

Mr. Breese offered a resolution calling upon the Secretary of War for information relative to the lead mines on the public lands in the State of Illinois.—Adopted.

Mr. Sevier, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, reported a bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to the State of Texas the amount ascertained to be due to her by the United States, arising out of the disarming of her troops while she was an independent State, by the troops of the United States under the command of Major Snively. Laid over.

Mr. Speight offered a resolution, instructing the Committee on Commerce to inquire into the expediency of making an appropriation for the erection of light housos on St. Joseph's Island and other points on the Mississippi Adopted.

The Senate proceeded to the consideration of the joint resolution offered yesterday by Mr. Niles, regulating and reducing the price of public printing.

Mr. J. M. Clayton moved to re-commit the resolution to the Committee on Printing, with a view to amend it so as to provide that the compensation allowed by it shall apply to the printing heretofore executed this session, as well as that which may be executed hereafter. The motion prevailed.

A Message was received from the President of the United States transmitting copies of a correspondence between the Attorney General and the legal authorities of Florida, relative to the powers and duties of the Territorial Judges under the act admitting said State into the Union.

The Senate thenwent into Executive session.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Bill for raising two companies of mounted riflemen, without objection, was referred to the Committee of the Whole and ordered to be printed.

WHOLESALE ANNEXATION OF TERRITORY.—Mr. McConnell of Ala. asked leave to introduce a Resolution, which the House allowed to be read for information. The reading was interrupted by laughter, and the whole thing was regarded by many as a fitting burlesque upon the proceedings of and speeches in Congress.

Resolved, That we hail the elevated feeling which now unusually prevails in our glorious confederacy to strengthen and consolidate the principles of Republican freedom and extend the blessings of our free Institutions in every practicable quarter of the Universe, in the spirit of Christian love and peaceful brotherhood.

Resolved, That while we hail the admission of Texas (which fought her way to independence) as a sister State into our Union, we now with unaffected pride and satisfaction, hail the resolution of the Executive and Congress of the U. States, to uphold our title to Oregon, and in the same spirit we observe the growing desire to incorporate Mexico, Yucatan, California, &c., into the Confederacy, and that Ireland is fully entitled to share the blessings of our free institutions.

Resolved, That the Irish people, as a nation, have long been ground down by the British mis-rule and mis-government, and while her people for centuries have been ground down by a monarchical yoke; they have always cherished the Democratic principles of a Republican Government,—the only Government that has ensured freedom to man.

Resolved, That the House will receive with due attention and consideration any communication that may be forwarded by that high minded and liberty loving people with a view to such an object.

PERSONAL EXPLANATIONS;

Mr. Preston King of N. Y., asked leave to make a personal explanation in reference to some remarks made by Mr. Rhett of S. C. They appeared designed only as a further assault upon Mr. Calhoun by Mr. King, who is a friend of the Administration. His insenuation to-day was that when Mr. Calhoun was the American negotiator under the last administration that he offered to negotiate away half of Oregon, if England would give up all her interference with Texas:

Mr. Rhett said that if the gentleman from N. York meant to say that Mr. Calhoun did this, he pronounced it an assumption unfounded in truth.

Mr. C. J. Ingersoll, of Pa., rose to add fuel to the flame by becoming a third party.

Mr. Hillyard, of Ala., who was entitled to the floor would not suffer this interference which was threatening to involve the House in a difficulty.

OREGON DISCUSSION.

The debate was then resumed upon the unfinished business of yesterday; and Mr. Hillyard, addressed the House in one of the most elquent speeches of the session.

He was against claiming the whole of Oregon by a legislative act, because it might trammel the Executive. He was against giving the notice at once, because the effect of said notice might also govern the Executive in a manner which would answer no good purpose.

Mr. Hillyard also gave many facts connected with the Commerce of the East, and the great benefits which would accrue to the Commerce of the country from the possession of Oregon, and opening the Commerce of the East to an intercourse with the United States.

Mr. Thompson of Miss., here made an appeal to the House to change the mode of discussing the subject. If the merits of the question were to be debated upon the motion of reference, no other business could be done. He hoped, therefore, that the Resolution would be referred to the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union,

The House consented, and the next motion was that for making the Joint Resolution the special order of the day for the first Monday in February.

The yens and nays were ordered, but as two thirds were necessary, the motion to make the Resolution a special order was lost—Ayes, 102, noes 82.

[This vote is important as showing a disposition in the House not to decide this question too hastily.]

Mr. Bowlin, of Mo. then moved that the House resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole, which motion prevailed.

The Speaker called Mr. Tibbatts, of Ky., to the Chair, and Mr. Bowlin moved to take up the Joint Resolution to give the one year's notice to England, closing the joint occupancy.

Tellers were called upon this motion, but the Chair decided so hastily that the House had no opportunity to order them. Mr. Bowlin therefore obtained his object and addressed the House at length in defence of the American claim to the whole of Oregon, and against the aggressive power of England. His speech partook of the prevailing disposition to say as much of our own bravery and purity as possible and as little of the courage and virtue of other nations.

Mr. Bowlin was sure that 100,000 men would volunteer to cross the Rocky Mountains as soon as war was declared and of the result of a complete victory of our men and arms he had no manner of doubt.

At the close of his speech the Committee rose and the House adjourned.

The Cotton Loom.

Nearly twenty years ago, says the Christian Citizen, after Arkwright had begun to spin by machinery, the price of a particular sort of cotton yarn, much used in the manufacture of calico in England, was 28s. per pound. The same kind of yarn is now sold for between 3s. and 4s or one twelfth of its price forty years ago. It is estimated that 400,000,000 yards of English cotton cloth are annually exported, and 400,000,000 used for home consumption. The latter quantity, at 6s. a yard, the cost 40 years ago, would amount to $1,776,000,000!—If no more cotton cloth is used in Great Britain than is absolutely necessary, then it would amount to $70 a head on a population of 25,000,000, at the price above mentioned. But this same cloth is now sold for 6d a yard, and 400,000,000 yards cost the people of Great Britain only $44,400,000, or about $1, 75 for each individual.

YESTERDAY we noticed a number of our volunteer Companies out on Parade, celebrating the Battle of New Orleans, and following the last remains of a fellow soldier to his last resting place.

Correspondence of the Baltimore American.

WASHINGTON, Jan'y 6, 1846.

The work of destroying the present Tariff has commenced, but not in Congress. The Secretary of the Treasury, following up the principles of his free trade report, has appointed a Committee of Custom House officers to appear here to make a new tariff. All, or nearly all of the gentlemen have arrived, and among them are Mr. Bogardus, Assistant Collector of New York, Mr. Welden the principal entry Clerk of the same Custom House, Mr. McConnelly, also of the New York Custom House, and Messrs, Bridges and Wellman of the same city. Gentlemen are invited from Baltimore also, but I do not learn their names. These persons have already commenced their labors, and are, closeted from day to day with the Secretary of the Treasury. They are here avowedly to make a tariff which the Secretary of the Treasury designs to submit to the Committee of Ways and Means and to drive through Congress, if it be possible to do so.

If the Custom House officers are to be selected to do the legislation of the country, Congress may as well adjourn at once. If Congress is serious, however, in what has already been proposed in regard to Oregon, there is but little danger of a reduction of the Tariff. A loan of twenty millions for the defences of the country and a brobability of war coupled with free trade measures would be such a legislative paradox as the world never saw before.

From the U. S. Gazette.

The Oregon Question, Mr. Adams, Mr. Winthrop, and Mr. Calhoun.

We occupy much of our paper this morning, with a speech of the Hon. Mr. Winthrop, (of Boston,) on the Oregon question. Mr. Winthrop is an eloquent man, and a shrewd observer, but his remarks acquire additional importance, from the fact of his District's adjoining that of Mr. Adams', and the general similarity of views entertained by these distinguished statesmen. Mr. Adams has awakened a deep interest for the fate of the nation, and his stirring trumpet-voice, breaking in upon the calm that followed Mr. Calhoun's pacific efforts, sounds like a tocsin note of war. We give Mr. Winthrop's speech at length, that our readers may know the best and most influential that is said on both sides.

Those who follow all the speakers in the House of Representatives, perceive that there are among them men who are looking for personal advantages from war—men who would sell all the glorious prospects that peace and prosperity present, for the rascally pittance of a miserable contract.—Others, perhaps, really think that the honor of the nation, about which they are incompetent to judge, requires a war. But some are deceived with the idea that the people of the country desire war—that there is a spirit abroad demanding from the representatives of the people an appeal to arms. Nothing can be more absurd—nothing less founded. The interests of the country require peace, and the voice of the people demand it. No one asks that a right of the nation should be thrown away, but all desire that it should not be unreasonably enforced.

The lofty position of Mr. Adams gives consequence to what he says, and suggests many doubts among his friends, even of their own correctness, until they return, and examine again their principles. But they do not hesitate to express regret at the grounds which Mr. Adams has thought proper to assume, and also at the tone of his remarks.

We repeat it, the lofty position of Mr. Adams gives consequence to his remarks, and gives effect, also. Those who cannot approve, have forborne to condemn openly; but from their silence, no evidence of approval can be deduced. The open applause, the generous enthusiasm, with which the same persons greeted the movements of Mr. Calhoun, the old antagonist of their principles, showed how they felt on the question, and forbid the thought that their silence with reference to Mr. Adams' remarks, was any thing else than the evidence of regret, which thus shown is the severest rebuke.

What will be the result we cannot tell There are reports that Mr. Benton will give way to the seductions of gallery applause, and cry out for the whole of Oregon, or war, taking with him other less influential Senators. This would be bad, indeed; but when the Whig members, on whom the eye of the nation rested, for that steady bearing that scorns the poor reward of popular applause, that spurns the suggestion of private pique, that stands ready to maintain the dignity of the nation, whatever may be the effect upon themselves—when Whigs, like these, disappoint public anticipation, why should we be disappointed at the erroneous course of others! We do not believe that war will result from this, but we do believe that this which we condemn would produce, and those who thus set most expect, the censure of the prudent

☞ The Barre Patriot gives the story of a school master in Millington, Franklin county, who, because a boy was unable to master his lesson, detained him after the school., and beat him most cruelly with the yellow pine slats which he wrenched from the windows. The boy fainted three times under the beatings, and upon his way home had to crawl a portion of the way upon his hands and knees. A warrant was issued for the arrest of the wretch, but he escaped, and his friends intend to compromise the matter.

SELLERS' VERMIFUGE!—The great worm medicine of the day.—Parents, read the following, and if your children are troubled with worms, get a vial and try it.

LICKING STATION, Ky. Dec. 10, 1-45.

Mr. R. E. Sellers:—I purchased of B. F. & J. H. Gardner two vials of your truly valuable Vermifuge, two of my children were sick at the time. Your Vermifuge proved more than I could have expected; from one child there passed nearly 300 worms, in about 40 hours; from the other some 200, in about the same time after the Vermifuge was given. I heartily recommend its use to all families, and I think once tried, no family will ever be without it. Yours respectfully,

☞ The unparallelled success has given such an increased demand for Dr. Duncan's Expectorant Remedy, for the cure and prevention of Consumption, and diseases of the Liver, that the proprietor has been compelled to open a Western office; particularly for the accommodation of those afflicted living in the West, who heretofore have been compelled to visit the Philadelphia office, or send at an expense and trouble. This notice is therefore to inform all afflicted with a disease of a consumptive nature, that his medicines and advice can always be obtained at this Western office. It is therefore to be hoped that the many thousands who are troubled with a cough, pain in the breast and side, shortness of breath, difficulty of raising up and throwing off the vicid phlegm and matter that settles in the air tubes and lungs, spitting of blood and soreness of the throat, and other symptoms that will soon lead to consumption; will take timely advice and procure a few bottles of Dr. Duncan's Expectorant Remedy, which is certain to arrest the very first seed of disease, that takes root when neglected and destroys life.

☞ Yesterday was a busy day on the wharf, there was a large amount of iron and nails shipped to ports below.

☞ Last evening at dark, there were 7½ feet water in the channel and rising, the ice commenced running out of the Allegheny, at 10 o'clock —at dark the Monongahela above the dam, was closed, from present appearances it is impossible for it to to stand long The weather is pleasant for out door transactions.

☞ The steamers Messenger and Hibernia, are expected up by Saturday, the former is direct from New Orleans, with a full load of Sugar and Molasses.

☞ On Wednesday, upwards of 12,000 Molasses barrels left our port for New Orleans, on three steamboats, viz: Cambria, Allegheny and Adelaide

Steam Boat Hull Sunk.

The Hull of the steamboat Massachusetts, that left in tow of the steamer Adelaide, on Wednesday, for New Orleans, sunk the same evening about 5 o'clock, at Beaver. The Hull was loaded with 4,000 Molasses bbls., 400 boxes Glass, a lot of lumber and 4 wagons. The glass belongs to Mr. C. Ihmsen, of this city, and was insured. The barrels belonged to E. Hazleton, T. Redpath, Irwin & Martin, J. M'Cully and W. & M. Mitcheltree, J. Greer, and others, and were insured.

We regret to learn, that two of the hands were drowned, by the upsetting of the yawl; one was named John Goslon, and the other was a sailor of the Geo. M. Bibb, name not known. The Captain and crew used every exertion to save them, but of no avail. There were four persons in the yawl at the time it upset, two of whom were saved.

The Adelaide and cargo are all safe. The Hull was sunk in six feet water, but as the river is rising and ice running very heavy, it will soon be out away.

Western Waters.

The Cincinnati Gazette of the 5th says:—The weather was sunny and spring like yesterday — Flowers looked glad in the windows, birds sang sweetly from their cages against the walls, and ladies and children thronged the streets on their way to and from church. The river swelled about 6 inches, making the rise altogether a foot and a half. The steamer Milwaukie left on Saturday for New Orleans, and the Mentoria yesterday. The Hibernia arrived yesterday from Louisville, between which city and this, communication is now re-established. A boat had reached Louisville from New Orleans and two or three started from the latter port for the former. The Freights now charging from Cincinnati to New Orleans, are 50 cents per 100 lbs. for bulk, $1,00 per bbl. for Flour, $1,25 for Pork, and $1,50 for Whiskey.

CATTLE MARKET.

ALLEGHENY CITY.
Thursday, January 8th, 1846.

BEEF.—There was a very full attendance of buyers at the yards, on Monday, but the whole offering of cattle did not exceed 100 head. These were taken up eagerly at $3@$3½ generally, a few bringing $4,00. Many of the butchers left without getting a bullock. The demand is active. To-day, not a bullock was offered.

SHEEP.—None offered.

CALVES—Do. do.

HOGS—A few small droves were taken on foot $3½@4,00 as in condition. This is a decline. The demand for Hogs has fallen off.

MILCH COWS—Are sought for, but none have been driven into the market since our last.

Trade of New York.

The imports, exports and duties for the Port of New York. for the past year are as follows:

TRADE OF NEW YORK.	Import.	Export.	Duties.	Duties per cent
1844....	74,926,465	34,622,270	22,126,507 19	30
1845....	69,332,399	32,891,662	18,155,792 22	26

It is here remarkable that the duties average 4 per cent less on the whole imports, and that the decrease of duties is 70 per cent of the decrease of imports, as compared with the Port of Boston.—The duties are as follows:—

BOSTON AND NEW YORK.	Duties.	Duties.
1844....	5,934,945	22,126,507
1845....	5,280,759	18,155,792
	794,185	3,979,714
Decrease per cent.	12	18

This shows a greater proportionate decline of imports at New York than at Boston. The arrivals from foreign ports show similar results. They are as follows:—

FOREIGN ARRIVALS AT NEW YORK AND BOSTON.	Boston.		New York.
Ships.....	148	139	471	530
Barques....	217	215	351	353
Brigs.....	607	550	909	805
Schooners.	1221	1406	143	327
Sloops, &c....	....	....	11	7
	2190	3330	2205	2033
	1844	1845	1844	1846

Although there were 131 more arrivals at Boston than last year, there were 172 less at New York, omitting steamers, in both cities; yet the tounage has doubtless increased in New York, inasmuch as that there is an increase in the larger class of vessels.

Medical.

The Grand Purgative.

CLICKENER'S SUGAR COATED VEGETABLE PILLS, for the cure of

Headache, Giddiness, Rheumatism, Piles,
Dyspepsia, Scurvy, Small Pox, Jaundice,
Pains in the Back, Inward weakness, Palpitation of the Heart, Rising in the Throat,
Dropsy, Asthma, Fevers of all kinds, Female complaints,
Measles, Salt Rheum, Worms, Cholera Morbus, Coughs,
Heartburn, Quinsy, Whooping Cough, Consumption
Fits, Erysipelas, Deafness,
Itchings of the Skin, Colds, Gout, Gravel,
Liver Complaint, Nervous Complaints.

And a variety of other diseases arising from impurities of the blood, and obstructions in the organs of digestion.

Experience has proved that nearly every disease to which the human frame is subject originates from Impurities of the Blood or Derangements of the Digestive Organs; and to secure Health we must remove those obstructions or restore blood to its natural state. This important fact has long been familiar to the world; but our natural aversion to medicine in any shape has hitherto determined us, in many cases, to prefer the disease to its cure. Now, however, the objection is effectually removed by CLICKENER'S PURGATIVE PILLS, which being completely enveloped with a coating of pure white sugar (as distinct from the internal ingredients as a nut shell from the kernel) have no taste of medicine, but are as easily swallowed as bits of candy. Moreover they, neither nausate or gripe in the slightest degree. This is occasioned by the fact that they are compounded on scientific principles and based on an intimate acquaintance with the origin of disease and the actual structure of the human system, which enables them to operate equally on all the diseased parts of the system. Thus, for example, if the Liver be affected, one ingredient will operate on that particular organ, and by cleansing it of that excess of bile it is constantly discharging into the stomach, restore it to its natural state. Another will operate on the blood, and remove those impurities which already entered into its circulation; while a third will effectually expel from the system whatever impurities may have been discharged into the stomach through the instrumentality of the other ingredients. Hence, they strike at the root of Disease, remove at all times the principal cause of disease) from the body; open the pores externally and internally; promote the insensible perspiration separate all foreign and obnoxious particles from the Chyle, ensure a free and healthy action to the heart, lungs and liver, and therefore restore health, even when every other means have failed.

The entire truth of the above can be ascertained by the trial of a single box; and their virtues are so positive and certain in restoring health that the proprietor binds himself to return the money paid for them in all cases where they do not give universal satisfaction.

PRICE TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER BOX.
Principal Office, 70 Third st. Fletcher st., New York.
Pittsburgh Depot is at WM. JACKSON'S Boot and Shoe Warehouse, corner of Liberty and Wood streets.

☞ Beware of an imitation article called Improved Sugar Coated Pills, purporting to be patented, as both the pills and pretended patent are forgeries, got up by a miserable quack in New York, who for the last four or five years has made his living by counterfeiting popular medicines.

☞ Remember Dr. C. V. Clickener is the original inventor of Sugar Coated Pills, and that nothing of the sort was ever heard of until he introduced them in June, 1843 as will be seen by the following

PREMIUM.

This diploma was awarded by the American Institute at the Annual Fair, held in the city of New York, October 19, 1843, to C. V. CLICKENER, for the invention of Sugar Coated Pills. JAMES BALLMADGE, President.
GORDON J. LEEDS, Rec. Sec'y.
T. B. Wakeman, Cor Sec'y.

To avoid impositions, purchasers must always ask for "Clickner's Sugar Coated Vegetable Pills," and take no others or they will be made the victims of a fraud.

Dr. Wistar's Great Discovery!

IT was once said—"There is nothing new under the sun." This has been emphatically true in reference to medicine. Hundreds of pills, panacea, expectorants and specifics, of all sorts, have been puffed into notoriety—all made mainly of the same ingredients, adding no new materials to the "healing art." But Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, furnishes a new medical agent—a new principle evolved from nature's own depository. It cures Asthma, Incipient Consumption, Liver complaint, and all diseases of the Lungs, when nothing else will. An honorable member of the Canadian Parliament, writes that it has cured him of asthma of twenty years' standing.

A. Williams, attorney at law, 58 William street, New York, has been cured of the same disease of twenty-four years' standing.

Mr. Cozens, of New Jersey, makes affidavit that it cured him of a supposed consumption, after his physicians had given him up to die; and so with hundreds of others.

☞ Remember we positively, in no case, palm off unreal cures produced by this invaluable remedy.

☞ Be sure to get Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry —there are imitations!

dec 30-tf south-east corner Market st. & Diamond.

Rubefacient.

PITTSBURGH, December 5th, 1844.—Messrs. B. A. Fahnestock & Co.—Gentlemen, I had the misfortune, day before yesterday to have my left thumb caught in a windlass, by which it was severely mashed and bruised. The pain was intense, and the thumb was swelled almost to bursting. I could sleep none the night following, from the agony I suffered. Yesterday I called at your store to see if I could procure any thing that would afford relief. Your young man recommended the Rubefacient, and gave me a bottle; I applied some immediately, and in about an hour afterwards, I obtained complete relief.—The swelling subsided, and the pain ceased entirely, and has not since returned. My sleep last night was sound and undisturbed. I still continue the use of it, and shall till the thumb recovers its former strength. I strongly recommend the Rubefacient as a valuable remedy for bruises MICHAEL TWAHEY, Fifth street.

FAHNESTOCK'S VERMIFUGE.—This is to certify that my youngest boy, aged about two years, wastaken sick last summer with the summer complaint. He was attended by a physician all summer, and received little or no relief. About the middle of November, I gave him some of Fahnestock's Vermifuge, which brought away one hundred and thirty large worms, and gave him immediate relief; he has been perfectly well ever since.
dec 24-d&w3t JOHN BAIRD, Sharpsburgh.

CERTIFICATE—We have examined Doctor Thompson's Uteri Abdominal Supporter, and believe it from its shape, to be well adapted to the relief of Prolapsis Uteri. We moreover state that we consider it a cheap article, and therefore feel no hesitation in recommending it to those who may require the use of such and similar articles.

FROM FIFTY TO ONE HUNDRED LOTS IN ALLEGHENY CITY, FOR SALE.—The undersigned offers for sale, on accomocating terms, from fifty to one hundred lots in Allegheny city, the titles to which are indisputable. These lots are mostly from four feet in front, running back from eighty to one hundred and forty feet, except the corner lots, which vary from one hundred to upwards of two hundred feet front. They are pleasantly situated in the First Ward, on the bank of the Ohio river, comprising the only portion of Allegheny City suitable for a good Steamboat, or Ferry landing, and are well calculated for residences, extensive Manufacturing establishments, or other purposes. The Omnibus from the bridge and the Stage for Beaver passes the property, daily, the former at short intervals, and Coal can be procured from the opposite side of the Ohio, at any season of the year. Manufacturers can obtain the quantity of ground necessary, upon very reasonable terms, and will find it to possess peculiar advantages for such purposes. Mechanics, river men and others will find it an excellent location for the erection of dwellings. A plot of ground can be seen and further information obtained by calling upon the subscribers, on the premises.
